GLM for healthy joints

With the partridge and pheasant seasons well under way we know winter is just around the corner.

Is your gun dog affected with stiffness in joints and limbs throughout the colder weather? It is a well-known fact that Omega

Ruggles & Stopitall's Maxavita Pernamax supplement contains Green Lipped Mussel (GLM) – a rich natural sources of Omega 3

3 essential fatty acids are integral parts of the cell membrane of every single cell in the body. But the body cannot manufacture them...they must come from the daily diet.

Omega 3 is absolutely key for healthy joints, balanced immune and nervous systems, healthy skin and general well-being and can offer very exciting benefits for soaking stiff joints and locking joints – in fact, it's a fundamental building block for good health. So how do you increase Omega 3 for stiff joints and/or aging bodies? One option for your dog is from one of the richest natural sources of Omega 3 – Green Lipped Mussel (GLM). But as ever, how do you know whether freeze-dried, cooked or cold-process GLM is best?

Kia, a 10-year-old Wire-haired Pointer, has benefited greatly from daily Omega 3

Ruggles & Stopitall have investigated this extensively and have chosen Maxavita Pernamax, partly based on the science behind the whole Omega 3 and joint health connection, but also because of their unique cold processing which allows up to five times as many key active nutrients to be retained within the supplements as their competitors. They also come as palatable, crushable tablets that can be fast acting (within days not weeks!) and are veterinary approved, and are available for horses and humans. So no need for you or your dog to struggle to get going on those frosty, early mornings!
